"Everything I know about life I learned from Boss Cow"

A Word of Advice as You Graduate

1. People with needles who offer you a good time are lying.
2. Never put a problem behind you; turn around and kick it.
3. Throwing your weight around usually works.
4. When in doubt, toss your head and drool.
5. Speak softly but swing a mucky tail.
6. It's yours if you step in it.
7. Nose rings are not cool.
8. Heavy metal is not a meal.
9. You can never be too fat or too full.
10. Ear tags give you a sense of identity.
11. "That's a lot of bull" is not necessarily bad.
12. Develop Attitude and you, too, may someday be...

Boss Cow!!

Dedication

As we leave CCCC, we take with us new knowledge as well as memories. That knowledge will enable us to offer a unique combination of skill and love to countless animals who are frightened and in pain. Such knowledge is precious, and so we offer our thanks to our teachers, our counselors and our classmates, for we have learned from them all.

Certainly, we are most indebted to the residents of the Vet Tech Clinical Lab. Day after day those small furry souls endured our fumbling efforts, sharing a portion of their lives with us so that we could learn. We are graduating and leaving, but they stay. May they each some day receive a just reward for their patient years of service: a home where the clang of cage doors is heard no more, where they can walk in the sunshine and smell the fresh air, just as any other beloved pet.

The Vet Tech Class of 1995 dedicates this yearbook, with love and gratitude to:

Moments to Remember.....

"My most memorable moment at CCCC was when we castrated calves in Large Animal class. I skipped a class so I could castrate more than my two calves. In all, I did around seven or eight. It totally made my week!!!!"---S. Kim Townsend ❖❖❖ "In my two years here, I have had many memorable moments: I have learned to stay away from #@%&@ pregnant sheep, watch where I step (and park my car) out at the barn, found out what 1, 25 dihydroxycholecalciferol is, and learned how to sleep through just about any lecture. It's been fun!!!" ---Maggie Reynolds ❖❖❖ "My most memorable moment is the day Mr. Bradford threw vomit at my face. It turned out to be fake plastic vomit. Needless to say, I turned many shades of red."---Crystal Anderson ❖❖❖ "My most memorable moment at CCCC most certainly must be when I (broken leg and all) was nearly plowed down by 2,000-lb., pregnant "974" because she broke loose from her headgate in Large Animal Lab. Of course, I can't forget about castrating the piglets while I was on crutches."---Leslie E. Crawford ❖❖❖ "My most memorable moment at CCCC was the castration lab in Large Animal Practice. I was so scared, I went out and bought a really sharp knife--I didn't want to do a halfway job. It cut so well, everyone wanted to use it. It's our best kitchen knife at home now. At first my family made a big joke out of calling it the castration knife, but the name stuck and now we all say without even thinking 'Has anybody seen the castration knife?' (We try not to say it when company is around.)" ---Linda DeJongh ❖❖❖ "I will never forget the day several of us were studying hard for Mrs. Robinson's final exam. The more we reviewed those 35 mm slides the more stressed we all became. Mr. Bradford came in to warm his coffee. While he was there, he secretly planted some fake vomit, and left the room. When we found it we couldn't imagine what it was. Nobody wanted to touch it. After eagerly awaiting our discovery, Mr. Bradford returned. We explained what we found. After enjoying the disgusted expressions on our faces, he reached down, picked it up and threw it on Crystal. It was a wonderful tension breaker. We all had a big laugh, and now a fond memory!"---Katie Moffatt
